

English

As authors we will be using a variety of stimuli this term to create writing from many genres. Our aim will be to show off all of the learning that we have completed this year in a series of short texts. The bedrock of our work will come from the text, 'The Mysteries of Harris Burdick,' by Chris Van Allsburg.

This text will allow us to explore themes of family, loss, discovery, change and nature.

Values

As well-rounded Citizens, we will be exploring how our school values can be applied to our school and the wider community. We will be beginning by looking at what it means to have grit and determination and how this can benefit ourselves and those in our lives.

Theme

As historians, we will be researching and analysing how our local community has changed throughout the last 70 years. We will explore how the physical and human geography have changed and impacted on the people who live here, how society has changed and developed and how changes to the national society have been reflected within the local setting.

We will be using our school as the basis for this project to coincide with New Marston Primary School's 70th anniversary.

Science

As physicians, we will be exploring how our lives are influenced by light. This will include developing our understanding of how shadows are formed, how light travels and the vital role light has in how we see objects (and how the construct of our eyes allow us to interpret colour).

Maths

As Mathematicians, we will be using this term to embed all of the knowledge that we have accrued throughout the year. We will be revisiting all of the objectives and ensuring that we are ready to demonstrate our learning at the end of the term.

RE

As Theologists, we will be completing our understanding of saints within religion, focusing on the links to our own lives.

Computing

As Programmers, we will be using ICT to research and present. We will be using computing in conjunction with our history project.
